How Do You Adjust to Being a Manager?

In this course, we introduce you to the basics of how to set yourself up to succeed in a management role.

You'll start with seeing how, as the leader of a team, not a member, your role will change. You'll see how to put on your "management head", so you approach the role in the right way.

Next, we show you how to get off on the right foot by adopting a persona that inspires people ... and always making sure you deliver on what you say.

You'll then go through five simple rules that will help you to develop more quickly.

By applying what you learn here, you'll not only avoid the mistakes made by many people, but also be in a position to accelerate your development as a manager.

Watch the modules, revisit them time and again ... and have fun with improving your skills!
